The magazine was submitted because of concerns that it might promote or support, or tend to promote or support, the exploitation of young persons for sexual purposes. The primary focus of the magazine is the sexualised depiction of females, and the explicit depiction and description of sexual activity between males and females. To some degree there is a focus on the relative youth of the women featured in the magazines, and the magazines are clearly aimed at men with a sexual interest in younger women. There is no real suggestion, however, that the women pictured and described in the magazines are under 17, and thus young persons, which is the definition of "young persons" as in general use by the Classification Office. Nor is there a sufficient extent or degree of artificial construction of the adult subjects as young persons, through such means as childish clothing and props, or youthful demeanour and poses, for it to be reasonably concluded that the magazine promotes or supports, or tends to promote or support the exploitation of young persons.

Consideration has been given to the relevant provisions of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990 as they relate to this publication. Given the manner in which the publication deals with matters of sex, and the purpose for which it is intended to be used, the restriction on the availability of the publication is considered to be reasonable and demonstrably justifiable.
